

4 Benefits of A Mower Canopy

Isn't it amazing how careless we can be when protecting our own bodies?

So many safety items or procedures just feel like unnecessary extras, or too big of a bother to deal with.

For example, it's natural to put on sunscreen when we go to the beach, but it's easy to forget to protect ourselves when mowing the lawn. After all, who wants to put on sunscreen every week just to mow the lawn?

And aside from the hat lovers, who actually enjoys putting their hat on every week when going out to mow?

That's why it's not uncommon to see your weekly lawn chore result in one or more of the following:

- Sunburns
- Skin cancer after repeated exposure
- Tired eyes
- Wearing a hat while you mow

The bottom line?

Protecting yourself while mowing is worth it. And here at Iron Bull, we have a solution to each of the problems listed above. Let's get to it!

Sunburns:

Sunburn is painful, annoying, and wholly unnecessary. Too often we put up with things we wouldn't need to put up with because the solution is too bothersome.

There's no need to "power through" your one hour mowing session.

One of our professionally made mower canopies will give you the protection you need from the sun without needing to cover your body every week with sun screen or "power through" the afternoon in the sun just to get the job done.

Skin Cancer:

There are many causes of skin cancer - and a mower canopy will not guarantee you never get skin cancer.

However, according to the Mayo Clinic, one of the major causes of skin cancer is extended exposure to the sun.

Why not protect yourself and help to eliminate one of the major causes of skin cancer by adding a canopy to your mower?

Tired Eyes:

Have you ever felt the strain on your eyes after being in the sunlight for an extended period of time?

If so, it wasn't in your head.

Science shows that sun glare and strained eyes can cause migraines, dry eyes, and swelling inside your eyes.

Thankfully, eye strain does not typically cause long term damage to the eyes. It is, however, annoying and painful.

Save your eye energy to focus on your family when you're interacting with them instead of using it up on your lawn.

Again, the question is simple:

Why put up with an irritant that could easily be eliminated?

Wearing a hat when you mow:

Hat wearers beware: this section is not for you. We know you wear a hat not just when you're at the beach but also when you're in the shower or checking your bank account's balance.

For the rest of us, however, wearing a hat is a conscious decision that provides minimal protection and plenty of discomfort.

Who wants to sip lemonade with your better half after your mowing is finished with hat lines in your hair? Or maybe it's that sweaty, itchy feeling that gets to you.

Plus, wearing a hat makes a sort of fashion statement that some prefer to forego.

If wearing a hat is a matter of protection to you, and you'd prefer to skip it, then installing a mower canopy might be for you!
